Explosion under investigation

Chicago Tribune

Investigators are trying to figure out what caused an explosion and fire that killed two people and tore through a residential area of Indianapolis, displacing scores of residents, authorities said Sunday.

"There's a significant number of homes that have sustained damage, including two that have been completely destroyed. No cause has been ruled out," said Marc Lotter, a spokesman for Indianapolis Mayor Greg Ballard.

"The investigation is ongoing," he said. He added that seven people had been injured in the explosion, which left a large debris field and damaged at least 18 houses in addition to the two that were destroyed.

Fire officials confirmed two fatalities early Sunday morning, Hensley said. Police have so far been unable to identify them, a spokesman said.

More than 100 firefighters responded to the two-alarm fire, according to a fire department statement.

Officials evacuated about 200 people to a nearby elementary school, where the Red Cross sheltered about 20 of them for the night. Others spent the night at friends' homes or with family, and officials planned to take the rest to the Southport Presbyterian Church.

As of late Sunday morning, approximately 60 cases of water and Gatorade were outside the school, and a police spokesman said donations are pouring in, including toiletries, doughnuts and pizza.

Firefighters brought the fire under control by 12:30 a.m. Sunday but were still putting out hotspots afterward, Hensley said.

The blast originated near 8415 Fieldfare Way, according to the fire department release.

From his bedroom a block away, 47-year-old software engineer Chris Patterson felt the walls of his home shake. The force of the explosion shattered a sliding glass door in his home, he said.

"It felt like something had hit our house," Patterson said.

Patterson and his wife stepped outside, where they found other neighbors in the street and an orange glow in the distance.

Fire department workers attempt to control the fires from the multi-home explosion.

But what about the other Obama?

Now that the 2012 election is over, Fox News is licking its wounds, and our radical, socialist, Islamic, ineffectual tyrant president has won a historic second term, I have one suggestion for Illinois Democrats: Start printing the "Draft Michelle Obama" T-shirts now. Standing with my pit stains and aching back at McCormick Place on Tuesday night, it struck me that the loudest applause line from President Obama's terrific speech was the shout-out to his wife, who is without a doubt the most beloved first lady of my lifetime. She also has the perfect opportunity to become the next senator from Illinois in 2016.

That's the year her husband leaves the White House and Republican Sen. Mark Kirk will be up for re-election. Due to his health issues, it's impossible to know if Kirk will seek another term, but even if he does, I mean, c'mon: The second Michelle announced her candidacy, Democrats would clear the race and Republicans would go into hiding.

And yes, this is exactly the model that first lady Hillary Clinton followed, and she wasn't nearly as popular as Michelle Obama or running in her home state.

As we all know, Michelle is a Chicago native daughter who grew up on the South Side before attending Princeton and Harvard for law school. She actually embodies the myth of the American Dream, unlike the daddy's boys so often touted by the Republican Party, who came to their success by sheer force of the overwhelming privilege their families bequeathed to them.

But the real reason she should run for the U.S. Senate in 2016 is that all this personal likability is just the nonsense-icing on the cake of the fact that she's a really brilliant woman with progressive values, who's only 48 years old, and who could conceivably coast to the presidency in 2020 or 2024.

This imagined scenario has struck me pretty much every time she appeared on the campaign trail for her husband this year. At the Democratic National Convention this summer, there was barely a woman in the audience who hadn't teared up in full view of the cameras by the time Michelle finished speaking. Count me as someone who believes the rhetorical flourishes of a candidate are mostly useless and certainly not as important as what she intends to do once in office, but I'm also a realistic political observer, and any time you can run someone who inspires and moves people that deeply and that easily, get them on a mother-f---ing ballot as fast as humanly possible.

Michelle Obama likely will still be one of the most popular public figures in the country two years from now, and her mind and passion can have an immediate effect in American politics on Day One.

(Is this column coming off like I just have a huge crush on her and want to get this all on record in case she and Barack don't pan out? Because that's really only a secondary consideration.)

I've heard the first lady say before that she doesn't have the patience for politics. My suggestion to her is this: Go get it.

CONSTRUCTION STARTS WITH REMOVAL OF 877 TREES IN PARK

Chicago Tribune

For months, Bob O'Neill sent out emails, attended public meetings and posted updates online to publicize the upcoming changes planned for a north corner of Grant Park.

But even with his efforts to prepare residents for the major construction project downtown, when the black fencing went up and hundreds of trees were uprooted, O'Neill, who is the president of the Grant Park Conservancy and Advisory Council, started getting phone calls.

"Trees are an amazing piece of a community, especially a city," he said. "When you see all those trees come down, you realize how important they are."

A total of 877 trees are being removed from a portion of Grant Park as part of the construction of the new Maggie Daley Park, officials said. The aged crab apple, magnolia, white ash, elm and other shade and ornamental trees are being cleared to eventually remove the soil and repair the East Monroe Garage roof.

Once that work is complete, there will be more than 1,000 new trees planted in the nature-friendly park, which is being built to honor Chicago's former first lady.

"It's difficult to see all those trees being removed ... but what we have is actually a positive situation," O'Neill said. "Because eventually what we will get is an amazing diversity of different species of trees. So that's a gain."

The construction of Maggie Daley Park is expected to be completed by spring 2015, city officials have said.

Crews cut down and mulch hundreds of trees Friday at Grant Park. The land will be the site of a memorial park for Maggie Daley. ASHELURBE/TRIBUNE

Maggie Daley, 68, died of breast cancer in November 2011. The park that will carry her name will feature a diverse collection of new trees, in addition to a meandering ice skating ribbon, a play garden and sculptures for climbing.

"This is a step in getting a much healthier park built," O'Neill said. "When the park was designed in the 1970s, there wasn't as much emphasis on nature, and they put in all the same trees."

Because many of the trees in Grant Park were of the same species, a lot of them fell victim to diseases and damaging conditions, O'Neill said. By planting a broader variety of trees, the new park will attract different wildlife and guard against tree fungus and predators.

Petraeus news is radioactive

The fallout from David Petraeus' sudden resignation as CIA director continued Sunday, with questions about how much the White House knew, and whether there is any connection between his departure and the attack on the U.S. consulate in Benghazi, Libya.

Senate Intelligence Committee Chairwoman Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif.) said Petraeus' announcement was "like a lightning bolt," and that there was no advance notice of his decision. Appearing on "Fox News Sunday," Feinstein also explained her statement earlier in the week that President Obama should not have accepted Petraeus' resignation.

"When you realize additional complications, which I did not at the time when I spoke to him, I think he did the right thing. I think the president really had no choice but to accept that resignation," she said.

Petraeus was scheduled to testify on the attack in Benghazi this week, presenting the findings of his independent investigation into the situation on the ground, but will now be replaced in the hearing by acting CIA Director Mike Morrell.

Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward shed some light on what Petraeus' findings may have been.

"I think it would have essentially backed up the White House—the question is whether he'll be asked to testify as a private citizen," Woodward said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

NUMBERS GAME

The Bears may have played in prime time Sunday night, but they weren't the only team making headlines.

1 That's how many losses Atlanta has after the Falcons' 31-27 loss at New Orleans on Sunday.

15 That's how many consecutive home wins Baltimore has after its 55-20 rout of Oakland on Sunday. Not only is that the longest current home win streak in the NFL, the 55 points also tied the record for most scored against the Raiders, set in 1961 and matched in 1981.

171 That's how many yards Adrian Peterson (above) rushed for Sunday—including a 61-yarder for a score—in Minnesota's 34-24 win over Detroit. He's already over 1,000 yards for the season, a franchise-record fifth time he's accomplished that feat.

NOV. 16, 2008

That's the last time an NFL game ended in a tie, when Philadelphia and Cincinnati deadlocked 13-13. St. Louis and San Francisco added their names to the list Sunday when kickers from both teams missed field-goal attempts on overtime.

1 Why does Jay Cutler say he wants to end his career as a Bear?	Kristin Cavallari loves Chicago pizza. Keep mama happy!	Because the idea of leaving Chicago must be absolutely un-Bear-able.	Career or life? With the offensive line being what it is, same difference.	Because admitting he's always dreamed of playing for the Chiefs would be awkward.	Tune in to the Jay Cutler show on ESPN 1000 at noon to find out!
2 Now that college basketball season is here ...	... we have another excuse to hit the bar during the week!	... I'm not going to talk about it until February.	... we can ignore it until March.	... I'll be scouting out future Sky draft pick Skylar Diggins. (crosses fingers)	... Northwestern will be able to choke in two sports.
3 What are your expectations for your favorite college hoops team?	For Bradley to have a higher winning percentage than Alfonso Soriano's batting average.	Repeat ACC championship would be lovely, but a second-round tourney game.	Is it March yet? Ask me then.	Cornell had its run a few years ago. Complete irrelevance is all I can expect.	You mean now that my dream of Phil Jackson coaching the Salukis has come to an end?
4 What can the Bulls learn from Monday's matchup with the Celtics?	That they need D-Rose back if they ever want to go to the playoffs.	That Rasheed Wallace's hair spot is bigger than his headband can cover.	Can they beat an old team that is way past its prime?	KG's favorite cuss words?	What goes around, comes a Rondo.
5 When Luol Deng says, "I'm never going to change the way I play," what does he mean?	He still can't hit a 3 or dribble, because he never had surgery in the offseason.	He'll just keep making it rain like climate change and Rick Ross combined.	He's not hopeful about that Groupon he got for guitar lessons.	"I will likely be playing through some sort of painful injury for the rest of my career."	That he's never going to stink like Boozer.

Football fireworks

Nobody's saying the SEC is out of the hunt for a spot in college football's national championship game after Texas A&M's win at Alabama on Saturday, but it will be tough with three undefeated teams left in the hunt. Here are the Top 3 in the BCS standings released Sunday night, and the remaining schedules (with opponents' BCS rankings) for those unbeaten.

Kansas State's Collin Klein
US PRESSWIRE

1. Kansas State

Remaining games

- » Nov. 17: at Baylor
- » Dec. 1: vs. No. 15 Texas

2. Oregon

Remaining games

- » Saturday: vs. No. 13 Stanford
- » Nov. 24: at No. 16 Oregon State
- » Nov. 30: Pac-12 championship game (if team qualifies)

3. Notre Dame

Remaining games

- » Saturday: vs. Wake Forest
- » Nov. 24: at No. 18 Southern California

THE DIGIT

76 That's how many goals Argentina's Lionel Messi has scored for his club and national soccer teams in 2012 after notching two Sunday for Barcelona in a 4-2 win over Mallorca, espn.com reports. He passed Pele's second-place mark of 75, set in 1958, and now has only Germany's Gerd Mueller (85 goals in 1972) in front of him.

Mankind: The Story of All of Us
8 p.m. Tuesday,
History

There's no way to boil the entire history of mankind down to 12 hours over six nights. But History makes an impressive attempt with "Mankind: The Story of All of Us" by focusing on how pivotal moments—the taming of fire, the idea of farming, the creation of weapons and tools, the first traders—shaped mankind's destiny.

Josh Brolin narrates, starting with the Big Bang and hitting on major events all the way up to the present.

In the first episode, re-enactments and CGI footage vividly bring to life the Battle of Megiddo in 1479 B.C., the first use of the crossbow in China, the building of the pyramids. Setting the first iron-smelting to electronic dance music gets a little corny, but overall the re-enactments should entertain anyone who was bored studying history. They might actually learn a bit of what they missed.

Various "experts" offer their perspectives, such as this comment about early cave drawings.

"They're saying 'I lived' or 'I had a sense of my own identity. I am somebody,'" says Jame Meigs, editor-in-chief of "Popular Mechanics."

Whether or not you consider them qualified, NBC news correspondent Brian Williams, Dr. Mehmet Oz, writer Henry Louis Gates Jr., chef Anthony Bourdain and many others chime in.

This is history-lite, for sure, but it's a lot livelier than your sixth-grade history class probably was.

'The Longest Daycare'

'The Simpsons' could win an Oscar

TheWrap.com

"The Simpsons" may get another shot at an Oscar thanks to a short starring Maggie Simpson, the youngest member of the yellow family from Springfield.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has narrowed its list for the Animated Short Award from 56 to 10, it announced Friday, and that list includes "Maggie Simpson in 'The Longest Daycare.'" The short, written by "The Simpsons" lifers such as James L. Brooks and Matt Groening, aired before screenings of "Ice Age: Continental Drift."

The four-and-a-half-minute 3-D short pits Maggie against her nemesis, Baby Gerald.

The Academy shut "The Simpsons Movie" out of the 2008 awards, prompting the legendary animated show to mock the Oscars before the 2011 awards.

The nominations for the 85th Academy Awards will be announced Jan. 10, and the awards themselves will take place Feb. 24.

NINE OTHER SHORT-LIST BEST ANIMATED SHORT NOMINEES:

- » "Adam and Dog," Minkyu Lee, director (Lodge Films)
- » "Combustible," Katsuhiro Otomo, director (Sunrise Inc.)
- » "Dripped," Leo Verrier, director (ChezEddy)
- » "The Eagleman Stag," Mikey Please, director, and Benedict Please, music scores and sound design (Royal College of Art)
- » "The Fall of the House of Usher," Raul Garcia, director, and Stephan Roelants, producer (Melusine Productions, R&R Communications Inc., Les Armateurs, The Big Farm)
- » "Fresh Guacamole," PES, director (PES)
- » "Head Over Heels," Timothy Reckart, director, and Fodhla Cronin O'Reilly, producer (National Film and Television School)
- » "Paperman," John Kahrs, director (Disney Animation Studios)
- » "Tram," Michaela Pavl-tov, director, and Ron Dyens, producer (Sacrebleu Productions)

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

The new moon in your sign is increasing your sense of clarity about what you really want. You shouldn't waste time on a dating situation that isn't going anywhere. Hold out for a quality relationship.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

There's a lot of fire sparking in your life right now, courtesy of two friendly planets. You'll have a lot of power to create change, instigate discussions and stir up mischief. In a relationship, try not to generate too much chaos.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan.19

Mars will be in your sign for a few weeks, helping you focus on work, education and career matters. A relationship might be less important as you concentrate on increasing your worldly success. Don't completely neglect your sweetheart.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

An old friendship that still carries a bit of sexual excitement might cross your path again.

Remember, you're a different person now. The moon says proceed cautiously, and don't assume that things will be the same.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You could receive good news this week, thanks to the sun. Maybe you'll land an interview at a cool company or find out that the love of your life is available again.

Aries

March 21-April 19

A funky eclipse has you feeling confused. Are you in love, or is it just something you ate that's wreaking havoc with your intestines? Things will be clearer in a few days.

Taurus April 20-May 20

Mercury will not make things any easier for you this week. Just when you thought you had your romantic situation all figured out, the universe throws a monkey wrench into the equation. Keep working, loving and forgiving.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Learn a new vocabulary word: empathy. The moon is showing you that approaching a romantic partnership in a casual, self-ish way is not going to work. You need to open up your heart and care.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Sometimes you let people walk all over you. The moon is showing you that you need to stand up for yourself and make your needs known, even if your lover isn't used to you being so bold.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

It's important to heal deep emotional wounds, but it's never any fun to do it. Right now the moon is showing you that your romantic future will be determined by how much homework you're willing to do on yourself.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Mercury is stirring up your sassy, sexy side. You'll write something flirty in an email to a guy you're secretly excited about. Or you'll say something saucy to a girl at work.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You might have a chance to play matchmaker this week as Venus helps you bring together two cool friends. Stage a cocktail party or a group dinner out and invite your like-minded pals to join you.

Star-struck

Even the rich and famous were in awe at Obama's election-night rally

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

 *lgomez@tribune.com
 *@aboutluisgomez

President Obama once again seemed to have a firm grip on the Hollywood vote during this year's election, so it's no surprise that stars came out to support the president Tuesday at his election-night rally at McCormick Place. And because, to them, there was no cooler place on the planet to be than Obama's rally, many of those stars just had to tell the world via Twitter that they were there.

Zachary Quinto tweeted several photos of himself and his credential at the rally—after manning the phones at Obama headquarters for what he said was six hours earlier that day. "So proud," Quinto tweeted after Obama won. "So grateful. Nowhere I would rather be. Hope renewed."

Will.I.Am boasted about his backstage access (while possibly earning himself a spot on the Humblebrag Twitter feed): "I got to speak with the president backstage before this historic speech," tweeted Will.I.Am, who attended an after-party at Primehouse and ended the night at Board Room. "[F]rom the ghetto to backstage."

Melanie Griffith appeared to be so excited at the rally she accidentally dropped an F-bomb on live TV during an interview with WGN News. Fortunately for the censors, fellow Oscar-nominated actresses Angela Bassett and Alfre Woodard were able to keep their composure during their interview with the station.

Benjamin McKenzie ("The OC"), who dined with Quinto at RPM Italian on Nov. 5 and at Chuck's Manufacturing in the Hard Rock Hotel on Election Day, also campaigned for Obama around the country and attended the McCormick Place rally.

Ashley Judd not only was on the floor for the rally, but she apparently also was backstage. "Passing through backstage, I saw Pres Re-Elect's acceptance speech," Judd tweeted. "It was suddenly real!"

Also tweeting from the rally were Justin Long, Vivica A. Fox, Star Jones, Rockford native and former Destiny's Child singer Michelle Williams and "The Talk" co-host Aisha Tyler. "History," Tyler tweeted. "Twice. I'll show this [photo] to my grand kids, along with my vintage console and painful corns."

Bond ambition

After charming moviegoers overseas, 007 made his way to domestic theaters over the weekend and scored the biggest opening ever for the franchise, not adjusting for inflation. "Skyfall," the 23rd film featuring James Bond, started off with a massive $87.8 million, according to an estimate from distributor Sony.

IF I WASN'T YOUR BOYFRIEND ...

You don't just take a girl to "The Lion King" for nothing, right? At least that's what the haters are saying online in the wake of the news that Justin Bieber and Selena Gomez have split.

Bieber was spotted at the New York show Thursday with—gasp—Victoria's Secret supermodel Barbara Palvin, according to E! News. TMZ cites a source as saying the two are not a couple and the Biebs hopes to get back with Gomez.

Kitty split

Well, with a celeb couple nickname like Kat and Mouse, what did we expect? Kat Von D and Deadmau5 have broken up, the feline side of the relationship announced (several times) Saturday on Twitter. "Man. Can't say I didn't give it my best," she tweeted. And the rodent side? He tweeted: "She deserves someone stronger."

HOT DATE DEC. 17

That's the series finale of "Gossip Girl," and tvline.com is reporting narrator Kristen Bell will make a cameo in the episode—though the studios, perhaps appropriately, won't confirm the rumor.

'Friday' challenger?

Thank you, AV Club, for pointing us to a song that is even more asinine (but also kind of awesome) than Rebecca Black's "Friday." Produced by the same musical genius who brought us that earworm, "It's Thanksgiving" by Nicole Westbrook is pretty much exactly what you think it is. Google it.
